(d) As per the information received from DFID, achievements in the State of Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh are given below:

†Original notice of the question was received in Hindi.

Madhya Pradesh:— DFID provided 5115 million Pound to UNICEF in 2001, to support Government efforts at mitigating the effects of drought in 32 affected districts. This support helped communities construct or rehabilitate 2,750 water conservation structures, which are now available for irrigation and domestic use. In addition the use of these funds created wage labour of over 307 million person days, which helped to stem migration from the villages.

DFID funds are also being used to benefit 93,000 people in almost 142 villages in 3 districts in Madhya Pradesh through the Western India Rainfed Farming project, Phase-II. This project has created wage employment for 3.2 lakh persons through various land development activities, and has helped the community to build various water harvesting structures including 169 wells and 37 water tanks. The project has also helped to form 462 self-help groups of 6800 members with an estimated savings of Rs. 13 lakhs. In addition adult education and literacy classes for school dropouts have benefited upto 540 households.

In addition DFID is funding an NGO, OXFAM, who are undertaking natural resource conservation and management activities in the Bundelkhand region. The project has ensured land rights to 5300 beneficiaries, has increased irrigation potential in the project area and increased productivity opportunities for self employment.

Chhattisgarh:— At present, DFID has no operational projects in Chhattisgarh.
